Abstract: The historical review of the development of military and non-military conflicts in the interstate and domestic aspects from the beginning of the XX century until now synthesizes a trend that highlights the use of special forces in a wider range of tasks. It is therefore necessary to constantly review their ability to respond to emerging crises and, if necessary, to improve them, to the extent necessary to deal with the diverse threats generated by the dynamic security environment.

Key words: Special Forces, development prospects.
